Between Us..

BY RUTH BEAVER

In spite of the rains that have been pelted for several days, things seem to be along in the usual way. If we have planned an outdoor affair, very quickly plans are changed and the gathering takes place on the inside. Last week when the Pembroke Garden Club came to visit, the weather was just what was needed. The garden was perfect and the folks who came from there and the folks who were here had a wonderful time just visiting and looking over the garden. The bride was very lovely in a navy blue tulle suit with white accessories. Those attending the ceremony were the groom's mother and sister, Mrs. William Hodges and Miss Vivian Hodges.

Progress and Freedom

THE UNITED STATES contains about one-fourteenth of the entire world's population, but it accounts for the whopping total of 40 per cent of all the goods the world produces.

One big reason for that is the we have made of the fuels that nature gave us in the raw state—but that had to be developed by man before they were of value to anyone.

Coal, for instance, has been and remains a primary source of energy. It provides the muscle power for a long list of diverse enterprises. It is 100 per cent essential to the production of the basic metal, steel, and it is responsible for most of our electric power.

And in late years the scientists have found that it can be transformed into a potentially endless list of valuable products—chemicals, plastics, cosmetics, even drugs.

In the United States, men have been free to make maximum use of our natural resources. And competition guarantees that they will be used as efficiently as possible, and, as possible—that, in other words, they will be intelligently conserved.

To cite coal as an example once more, a ton of it is now made to produce far more energy than was the case in the past—and research is constantly making it produce still more. A free country—in terms of human values and material values alike.

Given in marriage by her brother, Grant Tillman Jr., the beautiful bride wore a white tulle gown with a long train and a large veil. The groom wore a tuxedo. The ceremony was a double-ring ceremony before a large assembly of relatives and friends. The traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Roger Holland, organist, and Bob Marsh sang, "O Promise Me." ### Farmer's Question Corner

PREPARED BY American Foundation For Animal Health

WHAT ABOUT BLOAT LOSSES?

Q: Which farm animals are most susceptible to bloating?

A: Cattle and sheep, especially when on early pasture.

Q: What causes bloat?

A: All forage and feed taken in by cattle or sheep goes through a process of fermentation in the rumen or storage pouch with formation of various types of gas. Under certain conditions, as yet not fully understood, excess amounts of gas become trapped in the pouch and cause bloating.

Q: What happens then?

A: The cow's rumen swells up like a balloon. These gases will make the cow very sick and may even cause death if they are not released.

Q: How can bloat be prevented?

A: If pasturing legumes only, mixture of salt grass and sudan grasses. This combination will usually give the cow enough roughage to help prevent bloat.

Q: What other preventive measures are there?

A: If pasturing legumes only, farmers should feed their cattle hay before putting them on pasture. This roughage feed will help forestall bloat. Otherwise, animals should be kept off pasture until the legume reach the bloom stage. There should also be a gradual change-over from stock feeding to pasture-feeding. Keep free-choice salt and other minerals before animals at all times.

Q: If a cow bloats, what should the owner do?

A: If the animal is to be saved, a veterinarian should be called immediately. There are several emergency measures, but none are of value if too much time has elapsed.

NOTE—Due to space limitations, several questions cannot be handled in this column.

What Of Stalin?

FEW NEW STORIES of our time have been given so lavish a treatment as the final illness and death of Stalin. And few events have offered so fruitful a field to commentators and columnists whose business it is to move from the hard ground of fact into the risky air of theory and guess at future events.

Generally speaking, the forecasts of what Stalin's death implies for Russia and the world fell into several diverse channels. One group offered the hope that the whole Bolshevik edifice might come crashing down in ruin, now that the strong man was gone. Another speculated concerning the possibility of revolutionary uprisings both within the U.S.S.R. and the satellite countries. A third decided that the chance of World War III had become more remote because the new masters of the regime would have their hands full, and then some with domestic problems. A fourth, holding the opposite view, said that World War III might be more imminent on the grounds that Stalin's successors would have to take this grim step in order to unify the Russian people.

But the more general opinion—and the opinion which seems to be held in Administration circles—is that Stalin's passing will not generally affect, at least for a considerable period of time, the Soviet attitude, or change the Soviet policy of aggression over the world war.

This opinion has a solid base. First of all, it is extremely unlikely that Russia's rulers would have been unprepared for Stalin's death—the most far-reaching plans and preparations must have been made. It is equally unlikely that Stalin would have permitted men who were in disagreement with his ideas to be in the position of successors—the dead dictator was as ruthless and as efficient a hand at eliminating opposition as the world has ever known. And the past record of the men now at the top—Molotov, Beria, Malenkov—shows them to be Stalinists of the purest hue.

There is another and very important side to this. The dictatorship is not directed by several minds, instead of one, whether or not a divided dictatorship can succeed to succeed is certainly a 50-50 question. It is perfectly reasonable to assume that the top men, excellent as their relations may seem on the surface, are even now engaged in a quiet war for power, and that each hopes to eventually hold all power and liquidate the others. That is the way Stalin came to the top—the road he took was paved with the bodies of old friends and compatriots. There is ground for believing that as a long-term proposition a dictatorship has room for only one absolute dictator.

It is significant that the best reports we have had from behind the Iron Curtain indicate that as soon as Stalin's illness was announced—and announced in such a way that no one could believe he would recover—the police and military and all the other forces the Kremlin has at its disposal to maintain order and to liquidate opposition were put into a high state of alertness and were ready for anything.

Wrightsville Senior Leads To Victory

Hollis Ray Powell, senior first baseman of Wrightsville, took over as field captain as the Georgia Teachers College baseball team opened its home season by defeating Erskine College 7-3 and 8-0 Friday and Saturday.

With the big first sacker hitting in the clean-up position and his brother, freshman third baseman Kelly Powell, in the fifth spot, the Teachers brought their overall record to three victories in comparison with three losses. Joe Ed Greene and Clyde Little, seasoned right-handers, did the pitching.

The new captain, appointed by J. I. Clements Jr., coach, also is president of the college student body. The only four-year veteran on the squad, he is a 300-batter and frequently hits for the circuit.

The Profs will resume play on their home diamond with Presbyterian College Friday and Saturday.

"I Know the Answer To Power Problems"

Says R. L. Pinion, plant superintendent Belgrade Manufacturing Company, Winder

"We have to keep 110 sewing machines humming to turn out more than 400,000 pairs of pants a year," reports Mr. Pinion. "Our plant depends on electric power. When there's a problem concerning the application of electricity, I call on an industrial power engineer of the Georgia Power Company. He is my answer."

Hundreds of Georgia industries make use of this valuable engineering service every year at no cost. Last year our industrial power engineers made 14,700 calls on customers.

This is one of the many extra ways in which we serve. It is one of the many ways in which we try to be good neighbors and good citizens.

Dependable and low-cost electric power attracts new industries to Georgia and helps our established industries to grow.

A Typical Florence-Mayo Installation—No Flues—No Stacks.

FOR THE 17 YEARS in which we have continuously manufactured curers, it has been our policy to HELP the tobacco farmer cure tobacco better and easier by giving him truthful and full information—not only about the Florence-Mayo Curers, but about all curing equipment in general.

THE CAPACITY OF AN OPEN FLAME BURNER—the type used in tobacco curing—is determined by the diameter of the bowl and height of the chimney. The amount of heat developed is determined by the amount of oil burned under normal operating conditions. Florence-Mayo flare resistant, self-sealing burners are about 20% larger than those used in other makes of open-flame curers. This means that Florence-Mayo curers will deliver 20% more heat, yet Florence-Mayo patented Air-Conditioning Tobacco Curers cost no more than curers using under-size burners and no air-conditioning.

Farm Bureau Activities

(By BYRON DYER)

Smets Blitch and Miss Janice Deal will represent West Side Farm Bureau in the county talent and queen contest to be held on April 30. Smets took top honors with a piano solo at the West Side meeting Tuesday night. Misses Beth and Jean Nesmith and Miss Linda Nesmith tied for second place. Beth and Jean formed a duet at the piano, and Linda did a tap dance with Mrs. Emma Kelley at the piano. Francis W. Allen, county Red Cross drive chairman, asked the community to help raise the quota of $6,000, of which $2 per stay in the county he stated.

Corn contest entries from West Side were A. S. Hunnicutt, Charles Mallard, Henry S. Blitch, L. P. Joyner, Ben Grady Nesmith and Bill Nesmith. Those entering the corn contest were Mr. Hunnicutt, W. H. Smith Jr., Mr. Mallard, Mr. Joyner, W. H. Smith Sr., Durrell Hunnicutt and E. C. Hunnicutt. The peanut contestants listed were Mr. Blitch, Clyde Bailey, A. S. Hunnicutt, Paul Nesmith, W. H. Smith Jr., E. C. Hunnicutt, Mr. Mallard and Mr. Joyner. Dr. A. M. Deal asked the Stillson and Brooklet chapters Wednesday night to co-operate with the bloodmobile program on April 2, stating that the doctors had found that it is best to work with the Red Cross program to avoid waste of parts of the blood taken in the hospital. The senior class at Stillson provided the supper and song service program. The members of the Farm Bureau realized they were in for a good program and turned out in mass, over the meeting. Willis Williams, the Stillson president, stated that Mrs. C. S. Proctor, Associated Women chairman, will have charge of the April 22 meeting and that the talent and queen contest for the community would be held at that time.

Brooklet held its annual FFA pig show. Arthur Sparks showed the champion gilt and Roger Hagan the champion Hampshire gilt and Raymond Hagan the champion Poland China gilt. Brooklet will also move its next meeting to April 29 so as to hold its queen and talent contest prior to the county contest the next night.

Portals will hold its queen and talent contest on April 23. Hal DeLoach, their vice president, announced the regular meeting Thursday night. Mrs. Harold Hendrix and Mrs. C. Bland, Mrs. Harold Hendrix and Mark Wilson to arrange for the contest. Dr. John D. Deal met with the Farm Bureau and the county FFA committee, asked the tobacco growers not to forget the deadline for signing for federal crop insurance, which was March 31. Mr. Taylor advised the tobacco growers that they could leave a seed row in the field where needed and it would not be measured as tobacco, provided a full row of tobacco was left out for the seed row.

The attendance at all four Farm Bureau meetings last week was the largest that the community chapters have had in several months. West Side had some 250 guests for their talent and queen contest; Stillson's senior class program brought in about 200 guests; Brooklet's hog show around 400, and Portals had about 400 also.

Go To Sunday School

BEGINNING the second week following Easter, America will observe the ninth annual recognition of National Sunday School Week (April 13 through 19). Lasting the entire week, this all-faiths drive is planned with an ideal of stimulating the attendance of every adult and child at the Sunday School of his own church on Sunday, April 19.

Sponsored by the Laymen's National Committee, a non-profit, non-sectarian organization consisting of men and women from civic as well as business fields, this worthy project is yearly highlighted throughout the entire country.

The laying of foundations of faith through the training in religion for our little ones is all important if we as a nation are to survive in today's world of paganism and constant conflict. Our Sunday Schools are more than mere religious training institutions—they are a combination of the ministry and lay workers, a happy team, united in their selfless dedication to an ideal of an ever closer relation between man and God.

Prices and Competition

HERRELL DeGRAFF, an authority on food economics, recently discussed the big subject of food prices. At the end he made this memorable observation: "I have not the slightest doubt that if we can retain an unfettered competitive market, we will continue in the future to get more and better food and service for our retail dollar, as we have in the past. Food prices and services determined by competition will be sometimes higher, sometimes lower, depending upon inflation, production and the like. But they will be as low as aggressive competition can make them—and that certainly will be lower than any other kind of economic system would provide."

What is true of food is equally true of clothes, furniture, dry goods, hardware and everything else that is sold in America's tens of thousands of retail stores. Nothing conceivable can do as much to protect the consumer as free competition. Chain stores and independent stores, little stores and big stores, mail-order houses and department stores—all are competing with each other, day in and day out, for the consumer's favor. That means that each must always try to offer lower prices, better service, more attractive goods, or some other inducement the buying public wants.

The average American can buy more goods with the money earned for each hour he works than can the average citizen of any other country—and he can buy more than was the case in past times. Competition is one of the main reasons for that.

ASSOCIATED WOMEN TO HOLD REGULAR MEETING

Our next meeting will be April 14th. Each member is asked to bring her favorite cake recipe. Demonstration will be on cake baking.

His squad was eliminated in the semifinals.

The Teachers College retired Perkins' number 15 jersey after his last game here. At that time Seavore referred to the Williamsburg, Ky., senior, whom he had coached earlier at Cumberland (Junior) College at Williamsburg, as "the best all-around player in this part of the South."

Farmer's Question Corner

WHAT ABOUT SWINE ERYSIPELAS?

Q: How serious a problem is swine erysipelas?

A: It's one of our worst swine diseases. It has now spread to every state and causes animal losses of millions of dollars.

Q: Why is erysipelas hard to control?

A: Because it is very contagious and easily confused with other diseases.

Q: Does it hurt?

A: No. Erysipelas has been reported in colts, calves, turkeys, sheep, and even parrots. Human beings can contract it, so every precaution should be taken in handling infected animals. In man, the disease is called erysipid.

Q: What are the symptoms of swine erysipelas?

A: They may include scaly and scoughing skin, swollen joints, arched backs, lameness, high fever and an unwillingness to move. Swine are often aroused in the acute disease many pigs may die. In the chronic disease, pigs which survive are unthrifty and unprofitable for market.

Q: If the herd is infected, what can be done?

A: An accurate diagnosis should be obtained at the first sign of the disease. Sometimes it resembles other "look-alike" diseases.

Q: Once identified, what precautions should be taken?

A: Strict sanitary and quarantine measures should be applied immediately to keep it from spreading. Immediate vaccination, isolation of affected hogs, prompt disposal of carcasses, cleaning and disinfecting of pens are important.

Q: What steps can be taken to avoid future outbreaks?

A: In areas where the disease has become a problem, many authorities recommend that pigs be vaccinated as soon as possible after farrowing.

NOTE: Due to space limitations general questions cannot be handled by this column.

Here's The Low Down From Hickory Grove

Today I cast my skimmer into the ring and come out for balancing the budget. And to show that I am an unbiased person, I also come out for lowering taxes and right now, like the gents said they would do when we hurried down with our vote and said, go to it brethren. I am a middle-of-the-road bird — 50-50 — we need a balanced budget plus relief from that tax collecting giant encircled there in the U. S. Treasury.

We will never—no, never—reduce spending if there is money in the bank. If we give first heed to keeping taxes higher than a cat's back and the treasury loaded with dinero, nobody there in Spentdown DeLuxe is going to trim expenses. The one and only known way to trim spending is to discover that your bank balance has dwindled to a shadow and you find yourself fresh out of the old do-rum.

We are going to see the tax exempt cars cluttering the highways—likewise free gas for same. We will continue to be pestered by those high eating, cushioned-chair thousands that cram the federal buildings across the land—and where we go to pick up the check. We will be just what we have been for years—a poor fish and yoke—if the treasury is kept full and the budget balanced. We will be the country boy all over again at the circus side show—duck soup for a nimble conrass, as we limp home from the income tax place—cleaned again.

Yours with the low down,
JO SERRA.

Do Things We Enjoy Ever Pass From Life?

Checking through our long-ago files of this paper to make record of things which have passed, in that issue thirty years ago the eye fell upon the mention of the fact that music students from the William James High School were entertainment guest at the dinner club on that exact date thirty years ago. It was a casual coincidence, to be sure—this musical program. An hour after reading that paragraph which recalled that long-ago incident, we sat again at the dinner table at which were assembled friends. Then came the crowning event, a group of music-makers from the William James High School stood before the group and made sweet melody—Thirty years swiftly had passed!
